WHEREAS, discrimination against any group of persons can negatively impact the health, well-being, and general welfare of the City by leading to community disengagement, diminished economic and educational opportunities, increased stigmatization, and diminished physical, mental, and emotional health; and

WHEREAS, the City recognizes the inherent worth and dignity of all persons and believes all should be treated with compassion and respect regardless of race, color, national origin, immigration or refugee status, religion, sex, gender identity, sexual orientation, marital status, mental, emotional, and/or physical ability, age, or economic status; and

WHEREAS, in keeping with the City's commitment to fairness and equity, as recently expressed in the January 5, 2017 Martin Luther King Jr. Day Proclamation, Wilsonville hereby reaffirms a strong commitment to social equality and justice;

NOW, THEREFORE, THE CITY OF WILSONVILLE RESOLVES AS FOLLOWS:

Boones Landing it was called

Wilsonville was settled in 1846 by Alphonso Boone, grandson of the legendary frontiersman Daniel Boone. Boone and his family were part of the "Great Migration" across the Oregon Trail. They were among the first to complete the final leg of the journey by taking the Scott-Applegate Trail west from Fort Hall into what is now southern Oregon, then north up the Willamette Valley.

Boone started a ferry service across the Willamette River, then left for the California gold fields. His son Jesse operated the ferry for years and bolstered his business by blazing a trail north to Portland and south to Salem. It is known today as Boones Ferry Road. Jesse operated the ferry until 1872 when he was gunned down at the south landing in a dispute with a neighboring settler.

The community that sprang up near the ferry landing lost its name connection with descendants of Daniel Boone in 1880 when it was renamed Wilsonville after the town's first postmaster, Charles Wilson.

Wilsonville has always been at a transportation crossroads. The ferry operation, one of the first across the Willamette, was the critical link for trade and commerce between Portland and the Willamette Valley. The town became a bustling port where huge steamers docked with passengers, merchandise and farm crops, transporting them up and down the busy Willamette waterway between Portland and as far south as Corvallis.

The fertile soil around Wilsonville attracted farmers and agriculture became the major industry. Dairies, hop yards, grain fields and family farms spread over the landscape.

Nearly every farmer had his own dock along the river, which served as shipping points for crops. There were 38 landings in the eight-mile stretch between Butteville and Canby.

The coming of the railroad transformed Wilsonville. The trestle was completed in 1907 and the train depot at the corner of 5th and Boones Ferry Road became the hub of activity. Businesses moved north from the riverbank to be closer to the depot. Trains made 16 stops a day in Wilsonville. Students took the train to Portland to attend high school.

The ferry operation flourished for 107 years, making as many as 300 trips a day across the river. The service came to an end in 1954 upon the completion of the freeway and bridge, just east of what once was Boones Landing. At low water, portions of the old dock can still be seen.

The impact of freeway travel began in the 1960s as more and more people moved to Wilsonville to commute north to Portland and south to Salem. Riverside vacation homesites became year-round homes. Wilsonville, population 1,000 at the time, incorporated in 1968 in an area of about five square miles.

Through the years a number of Wilsonville residents became prominent in Oregon history.

George Law Curry was Territorial Governor when Oregon entered statehood in 1859. His Wilsonville home was the seat of state government at the time.

Maurine Newberger, daughter of the town doctor, grew up in what is now known as "Old Town" to become the third woman to serve in the U.S. Senate when she took office in 1960.

Edith Green, a four-term member of the U.S. Congress and recognized as "Mrs. Education," lived in Charbonneau.

And popular children's author Walt Morey, who wrote 17 books including the bestseller "Gentle Ben," also lived in Wilsonville.

The population boom began in the 1970s with the development of Charbonneau, a planned residential community on the south side of the Willamette River. In 2004, construction began on Villebois, the largest master-planned community in Oregon. The development will eventually have more than 2,500 homes.

What once was a sleepy town grew to nearly 17,000 by 2007. Wilsonville, once the hub of agricultural activity, was transformed as the freeway interchanges became the focal points for commercial growth. Its location has made Wilsonville one of Oregon's major shipping and warehousing centers.

In spite of the rapid growth, the surrounding area is still dotted by farms and crop lands and forests that for more than 150 years have been part of the rural character of Wilsonville.

Adult Winter Reading Program begins January 2

This winter, read books and win prizes, including an Amazon Kindle and a “Dinner and a Movie”.

This year’s theme is “Altered States”. The timeline of human history presents innumerable crossroads, where individual actions proved decisive – perhaps even more so if these actions were altered even slightly.

This premise has proved irresistible for authors of such stature as Mark Twain, Margaret Atwood, and Ray Bradbury.

Explore a wide spectrum of genres providing unique perspectives on what our lives might look like if humanity took a different turn, or takes a dive in the future.

The fun starts Wednesday, Jan. 2. Pick up forms at the library, or download them from our website:

A Word From Your Director:

One's visit to a park may be associated with different ideas of leisure, an activity, getting back to nature, or state of mind. Safe and easy access to a local park for relaxing and enjoying the outdoors is an important element in determining an individual's or communities quality of life.

Wilsonville parks provide family-friendly outdoor amenities that draw citizens to visit, to walk the paths, enjoy playgrounds, picnic shelters, ball fields, volleyball areas, the skate park, splash pads and our off-leash dog area.

Well kept parks and open spaces are important to a neighborhood's identity. A sense of "family" and community pride of ownership is fostered by the park crew's dedication, as well as volunteers and neighbors helping to assure Wilsonville parks are safe and beautiful.

This fall your parks and recreation staff invite you to enjoy the fantastic parks in Wilsonville and some of the many activities and events offered. The Harvest Festival and Fall Frolic 5K run/walk take place on Saturday, October 26th while the annual Community Tree Lighting will be held on Wednesday, December 4th. We offer Teen Adventure Camps, baking and cooking classes, arts and crafts activities and even a New Kicks on the Block (kids vs adults Kickball game) held on Sunday September 8th. Many more activities are listed in this Fall/Winter Activity Guide.

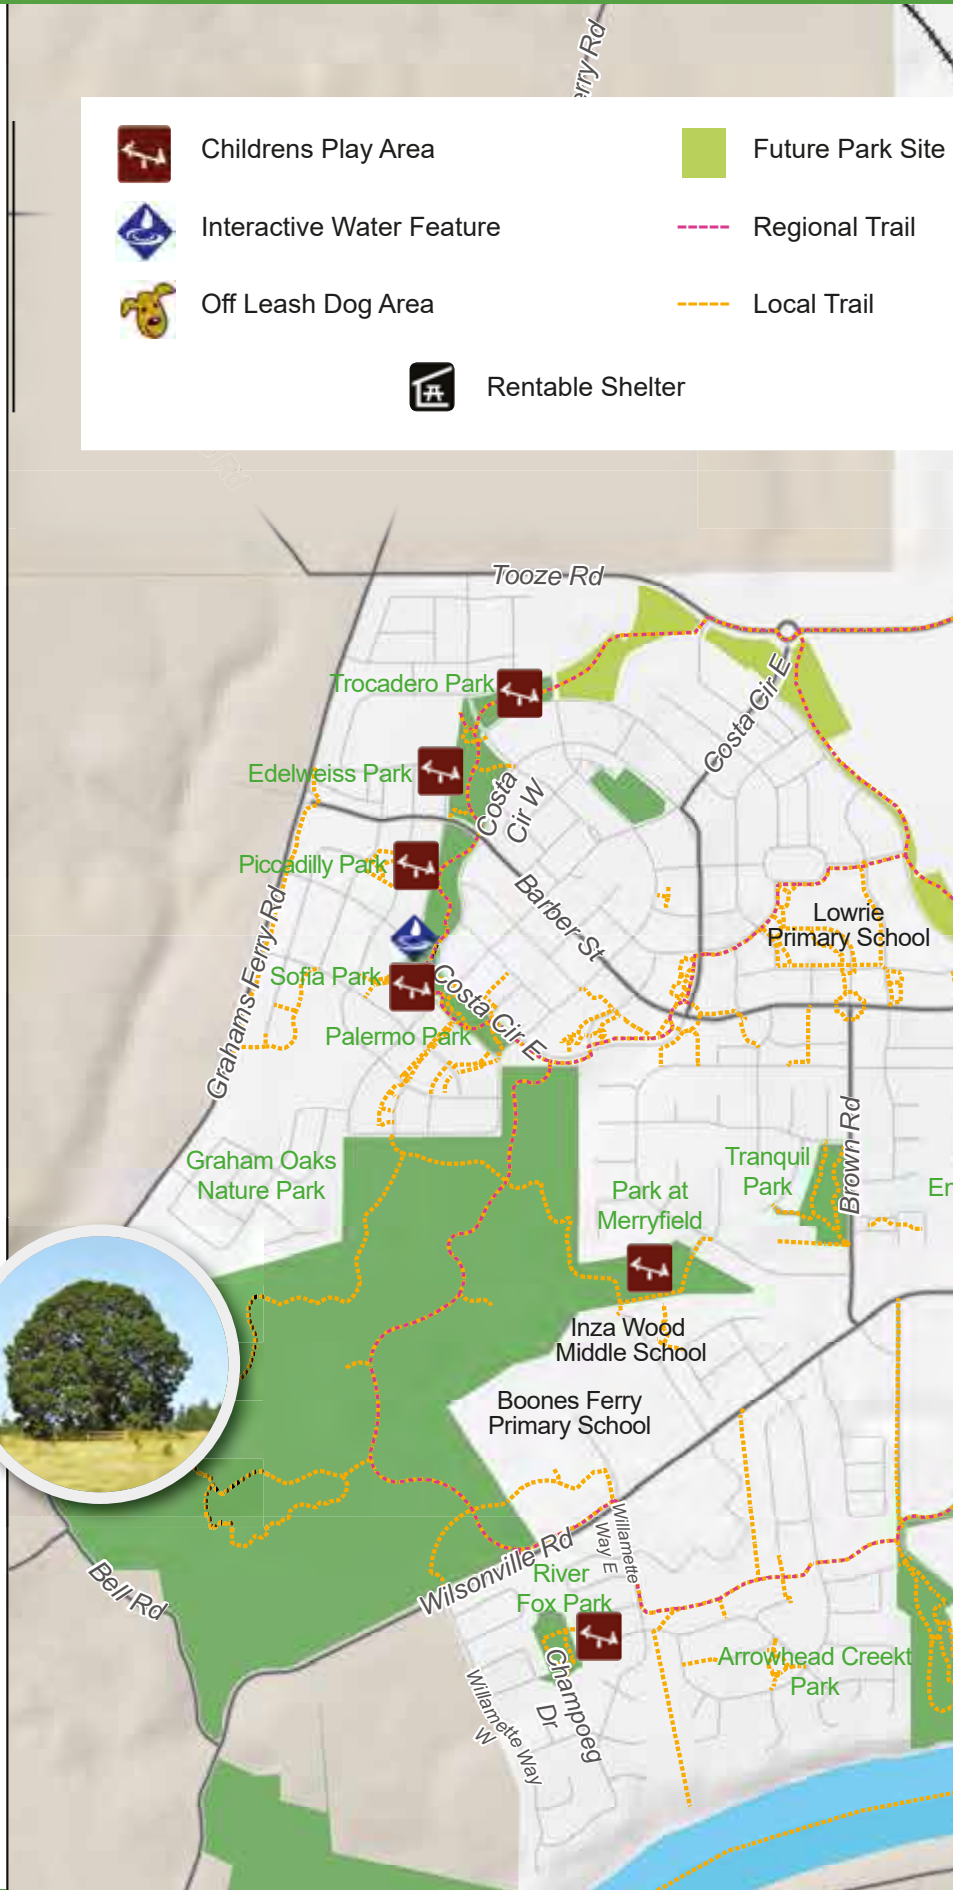

Wilsonville Parks and Recreation strives to build connections between residents and the outdoors, seeking to make us all part of a healthy community. Have fun and enjoy.

A Word From Your Director:

YES!!!!!! Summertime! That means concerts, camps, the Community Block Party, shelter rentals for parties, and of course growing plants and vegetables at the Community Garden.

The parks crew has been working hard (as they always do) getting the ballfields in good condition for the sports organizations. Erica (Recreation Coordinator) and Ahsamon (Program Coordinator) have been busy brainstorming new ideas. For example, "A Night Amongst the Stars" where the City is teaming up with the Rose City Astronomers to have telescopes to see stars and learn about constellations (page 9). Also a new Mother and Son Night of Fun, including making tie-dye shirts, pizza, music and Bubble Soccer (page 9).

The two coordinators have also been researching ways to improve current events and programs including the Wilsonville Wellness Fair on July 20. Movies in the Park this year include, How to Train Your Dragon (The Hidden World), Small Foot, Mary Poppins and A Wrinkle in Time.

PARTY—PARTY—PARTY, that's right the Community Block Party takes place on August 15th, 5-8PM. FREE hamburgers and hot dogs (while supplies last), games, activities and 3 hours of hit music provided by Britnee Kellogg, American Idol finalist in 2012. The entire party is FREE, so come out and enjoy!!!

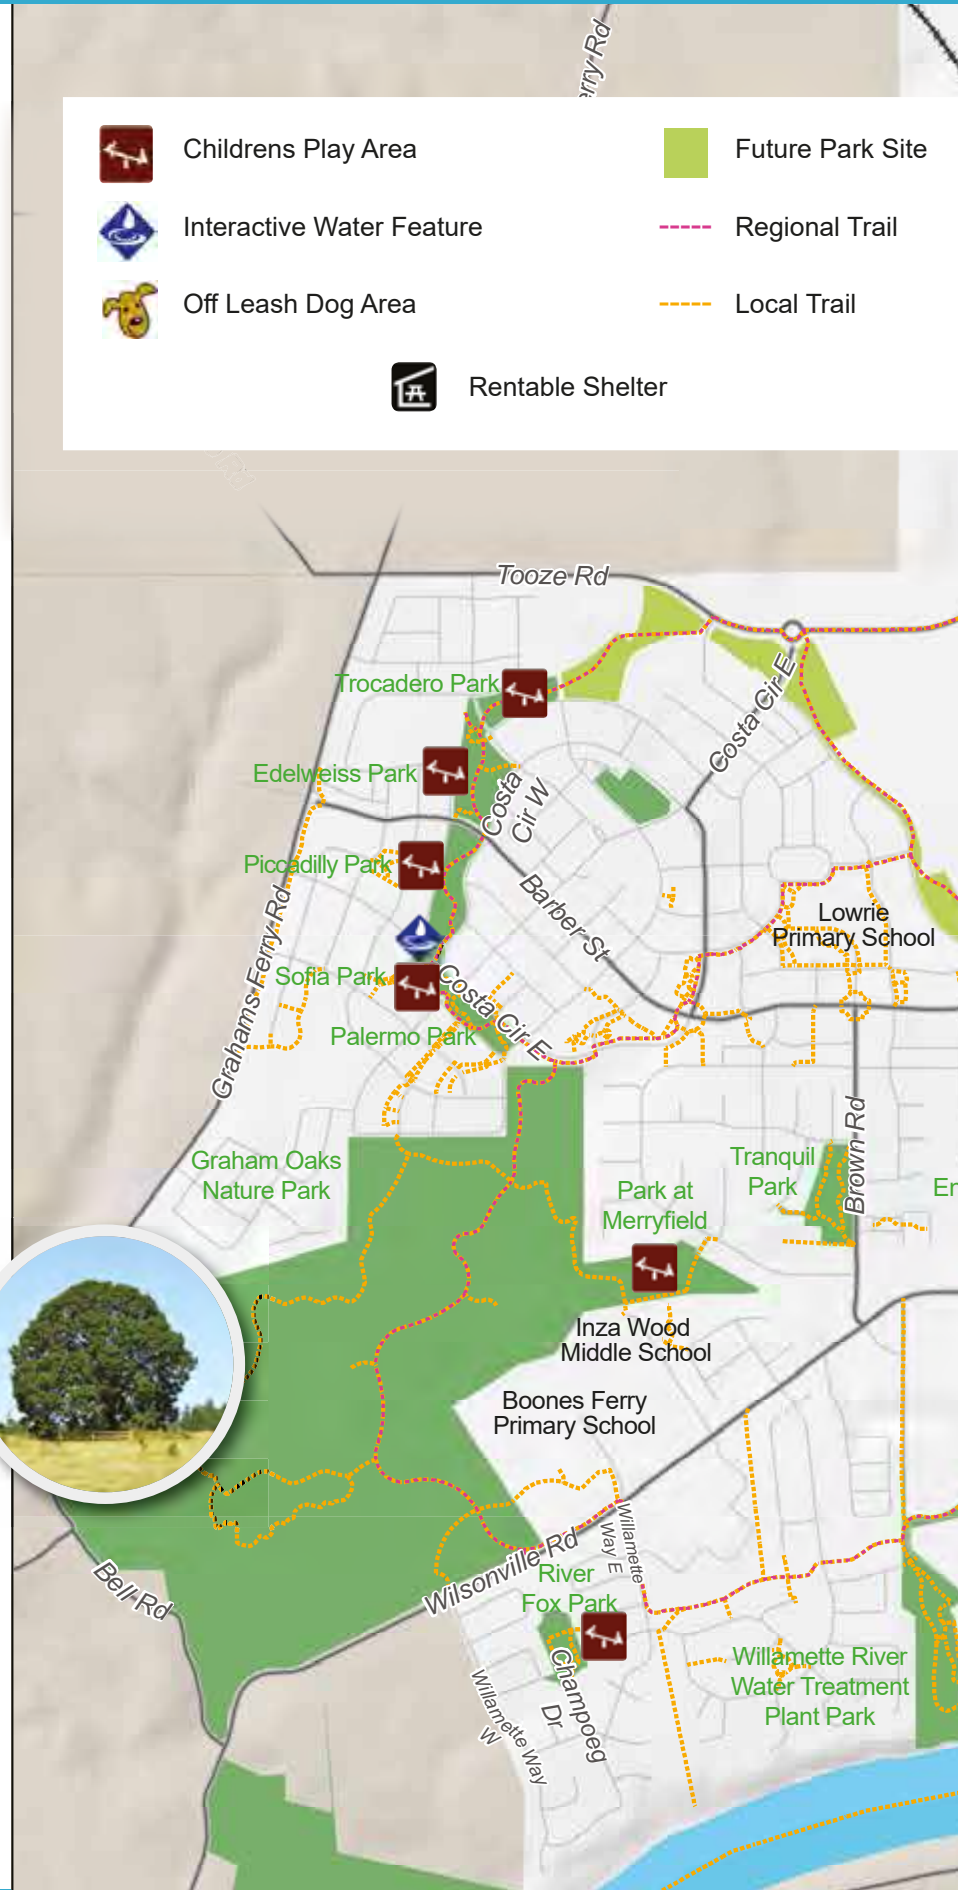

This is my 3rd summer in Wilsonville and honestly, there's no place I'd rather be- beautiful weather, kind people and plenty of outdoor activities to experience. Summer-time. Are any two words more beautiful? Have a wonderful Summer Wilsonville!

Soccer Shots

MINI - 2 to 3 year olds

Soccer Shots Mini is a high-energy program introducing children to fundamental soccer principles such as using your feet, dribbling, and the basic rules of the game. Through fun games, songs, and positive reinforcement, children will begin to experience the joy of playing soccer and being active. We encourage parent involvement in our Mini classes.

CLASSIC - 3 to 5 year olds

Using creative and imaginative games, weekly sessions focus on basic soccer skills like dribbling, passing, and shooting. We also highlight a positive character trait in each session such as respect, teamwork, and appreciation. Soccer Shots will expose your child to the fun of soccer and provide the foundation needed to get started in the sport.

The emphasis is on bicycle skills, safety and basic mechanical knowledge - all woven into a week of fun. The camp offers many traditional camp activities – sports, arts, crafts, drama, music, hiking, and much more.

Campers only need to know how to ride a bike. They do not need to be able to cover long distances or need special clothing, this is not a race program.

We bike in a group to different program activities in 2- 5 mile increments. Over the week they will build up their fitness level easily, as they gain bicycle riding and repair knowledge.

Our programs is for kids 8-12 who want a project based recreational experience while improving biking skills.

Cost is $295, We offer a limited number of need based scholarships and loaner bikes for use during the camp. Visit our website for full details.

A Word From Your Director:

A new year is just around the corner and as we celebrate the holidays and look forward to 2019, let's take a moment to reflect back on 2018 and what a great year it was for Wilsonville. We observed the City's 50th anniversary where we welcomed members of our Sister City - Kitakata, Japan - to celebrate with us. The Parks & Rec Department offered new events and added walking trails, more park acreage, and new programs for all ages. 2019 will see the opening of the new Dog Park in Memorial Park. As you look through this season's Activity Guide, please keep in mind some of the Special Events, like the Daddy Daughter Dance (Feb. 22nd), the Community Egg Hunt (April 20th), Community Garden Sign-Up Day (April 4th), and W.E.R.K Day (April 27th). Remember, parks and playgrounds are the heart and soul of all cities and Wilsonville is second to none in offering safe, pristine, active areas to enjoy.

History of the Oregon Korean War Memorial

Town Center Park, Wilsonville, Oregon, USA

Dedicated in 2000 to the memory of Oregonians who died in the Korean War, the Oregon Korean War Memorial is supported by the Korean War Veterans Association/Oregon Trail Chapter, City of Wilsonville and Korean War Memorial Foundation of Oregon.

History of the Oregon Korean War Memorial

Town Center Park, Wilsonville, Oregon, USA

As histories go the Memorial's story is not that old but the subject goes all the way back to the year 1950.

The Korean War was devastating and as all wars do, changed the world and the lives of millions of people – the worst change being the loss of many thousands of lives. Those who participated and survived went on to build a future that often haunted them for many reasons. Over time some felt that there needed to be some recognition of those event-filled years from June 1950 to July 27, 1953.

Members of the Oregon Trail Chapter of the Korean War Veterans were spurred to action by a veteran by the name of Don Cohen, Don's proposal and his persistence were the starting point. With the aid of Chapter members we started planning in the fall of 1995. As they say 'the rest is history'.

Completed in year 2000, the memorial honors the Oregon military service members and the Korean people from the Korean War. The memorial is located within a 5.5 acre (22,000 m<sup>2</sup>) city park located in Wilsonville, Oregon. The 109-foot-long (33 m) granite wall unfolds the history of the Korean War, primary participants and the names of the Oregonians who died or were listed as missing from the war.

Fundraising for the memorial began in 1996, 43 years after the Cease Fire Agreement that ended hostilities. Designs for the memorial were approved on October 14th, 1996 by the City of Wilsonville as part of its Town Center Park. Ground breaking was on May 8th, 1998 and the dedication took place on September 30th, 2000. The dedication was attended by Korean dignitaries, Oregon State officials, the Mayor of Wilsonville and veterans, both ROK and US Military and family members.

An addition was commissioned by the Oregon Trail Chapter veterans in 2006 to add a 15-foot wing with an inscription commemorating the friendship and appreciation which exist between Korean War Veterans and their families and the people of the greater Korean Community.

Many Korean and American dignitaries have and still visit the Memorial and all express their pleasure at the serenity and beauty of the Memorial. Former South Korean President Kim Dae-jung and his wife Lee Hee Ho visited the memorial in April 2008.

Many have contributed and continue to contribute to the planning, building and maintenance of the memorial, but many of those that were the inspiration and guidance for its existence are no longer with us so we remaining veterans have prepared for the future by turning over our interest in the memorial to the City of Wilsonville. Indeed they have been the keepers and maintainers of the memorial since its dedication so we know that they will honor our wishes and memory.

The advent of the KWMFO – Korean War Memorial Foundation of Oregon and their willingness to take on the future guardianship of the memorial in conjunction with the City of Wilsonville, gives us veterans reassurance that our service was and always will be recognized and remembered. We ask for no more than that.

Mayor's Message

Celebrate Wilsonville Community This Summer

Summer 2012 promises to be an exciting and fun time for the community of Wilsonville. Over 1,000 of the community's children are anxiously looking forward to seeing the amazing "Beauty and the Bridge" project come to fruition. As detailed in the accompanying article, Wilsonville students spent hundreds of hours researching, sketching and painting on tiles images of local plants and animals.

The Wilsonville Road I-5 underpass will be transformed this summer from drab, gray concrete bulkheads to a bright, colorful "fi-esta" of hand-painted tiles showing scenes of nature. What a great way to celebrate the wonderful community where we are most fortunate to live or work — and to distinguish ourselves by showing Wilsonville's special character to residents and visitors as they enter our City.

This summer, Wilsonville will again host a variety of community celebrations, concerts and movies in the park. Starting the first week-end of June with the Wilsonville Festival of the Arts, community events are set to occur nearly every week during the summer. More details on these events are inside this edition of the newsletter, so plan to join in with our friends and neighbors for a great summer season!

Wilsonville Students Help Create a Visual Legacy

As the sun shone brightly outside of Wilsonville High School's art studio, senior Brandy Fish, along with her fellow artists, remained content to stay indoors and paint a tile mural of Wilsonville's natural beauty.

Fish's brush strokes add to artistic contributions by over 1,000 Wilsonville 3rd through 12th grade public school students and their 10,000 hours of researching, sketching, and glazing for the City of Wilsonville's Beauty and the Bridge project.

"It really shows that we are a force to be reckoned with. I mean, what other city could produce a work this extraordinary and manage to have the hands of so many young citizens involved? This mural not only shows the flora and fauna of the north Willamette Valley, but it also illustrates beautifully the strong sense of community that we hold so near and dear to our hearts," Fish said.

The project's success is due to a strong partnership between the City of Wilsonville and the West Linn Wilsonville School District and reflects one of the core project themes, connectivity. Visitors and residents will connect visually to a portrayal of the area's natural beauty by an inviting community gateway with safer bicycle and pedestrian access between east and west Wilsonville. For local young artists, they will remain connected to Wilsonville with a permanent display of their creativity now and into the future.

If beauty is in the eye of the beholder, then Wilsonville citizens will behold a masterpiece of community creativity as installation of Beauty and the Bridge begins in May and continues through summer 2012.

BEAUTY AND THE BRIDGE

If you drive under the I-5 overpass at Wilsonville Road, don't expect the typical dark belly of a freeway. Look south, and you'll glimpse the early stages of the long-awaited Beauty and the Bridge mural as setters work to install its 7,200 tiles. This artwork features hand-painted flora and fauna native to the North Willamette Valley. While cohesive enough to appear as the work of one artist, it's the collaborative result of over 1,000 Wilsonville School District students.

In addition to the underpass art, there will be raised pathways on both sides of the road, framed by student-designed custom railings. The placement of the mural is part of a greater effort by the Wilsonville City Council to encourage more bike and walking traffic along Wilsonville Road by creating an attractive space for users. The Beauty and the Bridge is scheduled for completion later this summer.

While the school year wrapped up for the Wilsonville School District, art students worked under a tight deadline to prepare the final tiles for their permanent home. Frantic? Not at all. "We all help out. No one's really 'in charge.' We all figure out what we need to do and everybody takes a part," said junior Rachel Roll.

Although students were given artistic direction, coordinators encouraged the young artists to explore their art-making aesthetics both personally and collaboratively. "You have to learn how to imitate all kinds of different styles and work towards a common goal," said senior Brandy Fish.

Students completed tasks according to their ages. Elementary school students were in charge of the landscape and small animals, middle school students painted a giant oak tree, and high school students worked on large "focal point" animals. They researched, sketched and painted tiles, then glazed and fired them in kilns. The process makes the artwork — grasses, flowers, foxes, elk, small fish — pop with a cheerful burst of color that even the grayest Oregon sky can't darken.

"Somebody's painterly style, somebody's way of blending colors, you're going to see that voice come through in each and every one," said Wilsonville High School art teacher Christopher Shotola-Hardt. "But when you're down there under the bridge, you look and you will not see any abrupt edges. You cannot tell that this was done at different times by different kids at different locations. They nailed it."

The Beauty and the Bridge project under construction at the I-5 Wilsonville Road exit in Wilsonville, OR.

Part of the mural's seamlessness is thanks to a small group of 22 Wilsonville High School students fondly dubbed "Special Ops," whose duty was to take individual segments of the mural and blur them together.

The project's vast collaborative nature was often the source of unexpected friendships for students involved. "I think it's like, because we're always around each other all the time in the morning and you bond from that. We'll turn on the radio and paint together and we laugh and it's fun," junior Sydney Ito explained.

Project coordinators hope that the sense of community students forged from creating the mural will spread throughout Wilsonville. To the creators, beautifying the bridge isn't just an aesthetic project, and installing a walk/bike path isn't a mere physical convenience. "This is a great way to bring the whole community together," said Boones Ferry Artist-in-Residence Joan Carlson. "The whole idea is we're trying to bridge Wilsonville."

Rose Hansen / OPB

WHS sophomore Samantha Holman adds a final coat of paint to the surrounding landscape.

Project coordinators hope that, at the very least, residents will park at a nearby Fred Meyer and walk through the underpass to admire the work of the students.

"[It] connects the two sides of Wilsonville, which the freeway has chopped in half for so long," said Carlson.

Walking the length of the mural allows visitors to see little jokes and personal stamps that drivers would otherwise miss. While the mural itself isn't necessarily a storyboard, it contains what Wilsonville High School art teacher Christopher Shotola-Hardt calls "unintended narratives." For example, certain animals, such as a beaver and a duck, have been placed next to one another to both poke fun and honor the state's university rivalries.

But that humor might only be noticed if people do what the mural is intended to do: encourage community members to actually use it.

At the very least, the students themselves recognize how their hand in the mural has tied them to Wilsonville for years to come. "After I leave, I'll come back and it'll be really exciting to see when I drive down I-5," said Fish.

Project coordinators echo these same sentiments. "Part of the fun is these kids are going to come back and tell their kids, 'Hey, I painted this turtle,'" said Carlson.

And though the students recognize that the mural is a piece of public art owned by the community, Shotola-Hardt believes they will always feel responsible for it, and that's good.

"Each student sees their animal. They think, 'That's my elk. It's Megan's elk. Not anybody else's.' So there's this great ownership," he explained.

That sense of ownership protects the mural from one of its greatest perceived threats: graffiti. The city performed multiple tests to "destroy" the mural. Short of slamming into it with a car, the tiles are very durable, and the school is making a "repair" log just in case anything needs to be tended to in the future. But project coordinators report little concern for defacement due to the vast number of individuals invested in it.

"If you've worked on this project, you're not going to destroy it and you know your friends aren't going to do that, too," said Artist-in-Residence Maggie Englund.

Joan Carlson claimed that students filled them in on a kind of 'unwritten code': "Taggers don't tag other people's artwork."

Back in the Wilsonville classrooms, students are busily painting and sanding smooth the edges of the final tiles. To be so near completion, and oh-so close to summer, lends an air of excitement to everyone involved. As Brandy Fish put it, "Oh look! It's coming up! It's going to be so cool! Like, the coolest project in Oregon!"

Student artists recognized by city council

Students worked on Beauty and the Bridge project

The Student Art Council gave one final update to the Wilsonville City Council on May 21 as the Beauty and the Bridge Project nears completion.

Representing more than 1,000 students who participated in the art project, the student art council served as a liaison to the city and the voice of the young artists.

Students addressed the council, thanking them and inviting the community to learn more about Beauty and the Bridge at the Wilsonville Festival of Art June 2 and 3. There was a display at the event, which was held at Town Center Park.

“On a personal note, I’d like to thank each and every one of you for your cooperation and trust that you placed in both the student art council and our fearless leaders in this project,” said Emma Foster, a student at Art Tech High School. “It has really been incredible watching this whole thing come together, all the way from the third graders to the AP art students.”

The council thanked the students for their dedication to the project and each student was presented with a plaque in recognition of their contribution.

The job of the student artists is now complete and now General Contracting LLC will take over to install the murals that will span both sides of the I-5 underpass on Wilsonville Road.

Installation of the two murals has started and will continue, weather permitting, on the south wall of the underpass first. The two existing freeway walls are 64 feet across.

As the tiles go up, the community may catch a glimpse of the south mural, which features a large oak tree with an expansive canopy filled with native species. Among other elements, a large bull elk will serve as a beautiful focal point.

The artwork on the tiles was done with glaze paints that were then fired to create long-lasting color.

“We worked closely with city public works and they approved prototypes of aesthetic elements,” said Project Manager Cynthia Thompson of BCB Consulting. Using the right materials limits any potential damage, ensuring that the artwork is permanent. After installation, the city is responsible for long-term maintenance.

Wilsonville students bring color to Interstate 5 underpass with 'Beauty and the Bridge' mural

Published: Friday, May 25, 2012, 6:00 AM

By Rachel Stark, The Oregonian

After graduation, Corinne Luper plans to trek down Wilsonville Road, wearing her cap and gown, to the bustling Interstate 5 interchange.

It's not the typical gathering spot for high school seniors, but Luper wants to see the long-awaited art going up under the bridge.

Called Beauty and the Bridge, the public art project features 7,200 square feet of student-painted tiles depicting local flora and fauna. Installation of the tiles on the Wilsonville Road underpass began this week.

Luper, a senior at Wilsonville High School, was one of more than 1,000 elementary, middle and high school students who created the mural. The kids researched, sketched and painted the tiles, then covered them with glaze and fired them in a kiln. The process made the artwork – the beaver, the deer, the ladybugs, the giant oak tree – pop with glossy, vibrant colors.

Rachel Stark/The Oregonian

Morgan Pina, a sophomore at Wilsonville High School, paints the finishing touches on a group of tiles for the Beauty and the Bridge project in March. "If I had a lot of research money, I would track the kids to see how this influenced them later in life," said Chris Watchie, the project's school program coordinator

Luper remembers the late nights spent working on her tiles, the days she felt she was painting "just for the heck of it." Last spring when she got involved, envisioning the final product was nearly impossible. "Now, it's really come to life," she said.

"The challenge for this project was for the council and the community to have this leap of faith," said Chris Watchie, Beauty and the Bridge school program coordinator. "They didn't know what it was going to look like."

A bigger challenge was the cost. The art project cost $800,000 of urban renewal money. It was touted as the beautifying portion of the larger $21.5 interchange expansion project, also set to finish this summer.

Cynthia Thompson, project manager with BCB Consulting, said she's fielded questions about the cost but thinks city council realized the value in adding charm to the city's gateway.

"You're going to spend a small percentage to make it not look like the Salem interchange," Thompson said, describing it as "enormous and gray."

"In my opinion, every community should do it, but of course I know there's a lot of people that don't agree with that."

On Monday, student leaders of the project presented an update and thanked city council for their support. They spoke about the 700 paintbrushes and 80 gallons of glaze used, and the days they came home with "paint under their finger nails."

Throughout the project, many of the same students toured City Hall to learn about the civic process, talked about economic development with a Fred Meyer manager, and explored the interchange with a construction manager. "It was like a VIP pass to what's happening behind the scenes," Luper said.

Mayor Tim Knapp applauded the students for creating an icon that reflects the community's sense of pride and hospitality. "It will set us apart as a different community the minute people get off the freeway."

As for Luper, she plans to go to college next year to study fine arts and journalism. She knows when she comes back to visit in years to come, the art will be there, welcoming her home.

Rachel Stark/The Oregonian

Tasks for the Beauty and the Bridge project were assigned to more than 1,000 local students according to their age group. Elementary school students painted the grass, bugs and birds, middle school students painted the giant oak tree, and high school students painted the large animals, like this coyote.

The community may catch a glimpse of the long-awaited Beauty and the Bridge art as installation of the tiles finally begins this week on the south wall.

The ambitious art project involved over 1,000 Wilsonville students and about 7,200 glaze-painted square-foot tiles that will span both sides of the Wilsonville Road underpass.

“I am ecstatic, to be honest,” said Project Manager Cynthia Thompson of BCB Consulting. “I’ve been working on this for a long time and I’m really excited to see it go up.”

Thompson anticipates it taking about a month for General Contracting LLC to install the tiles on the south side. Once the south side is completed around mid-June, installation on the north side is expected to start if all goes well. The entire expanse of artwork should be installed by mid-July to the end of July.

The Student Art Council members gave their last update to the Wilsonville City Council at Monday’s meeting. Two representatives from each of the school’s involved in the art project updated the council on the final stages of the work. They then were awarded plaques in recognition of their contribution to the project.

Beauty and the Bridge installation: *The murals placed along the walls of the Wilsonville Road freeway interchange will include floral and fauna, drawn and painted by local students.

“It’s a great project and Wilsonville should be very proud of their community and their school district and their city for taking risks because it’s sort of an unusual thing to do a project like this,” said Thompson, who believes it might be the largest bike and pedestrian project ever built in Wilsonville.

A sidewalk raised five feet off the ground will bring pedestrians up close to the artwork, where they will be protected from cars by a decorative railing, also designed by students.

As schools near the beginning of summer break, various assemblies and events at different schools will celebrate the completion of the murals and the work done by students.

Thompson said it’s almost sad to be wrapping up the project.

“It’s been a great experience working with the school district and the teams,” she said. “We’ve almost become family.”

Although the project is almost over, the community will be able to enjoy the artwork for many years into the future. Depicting the local and natural history of Wilsonville, the artwork will feature local ecosystems, landmarks and over 300 native plant and animal species.

Instead of the dark and dirty concrete typical of a freeway underpass, travelers traveling through will be treated to a vibrant expanse of artwork, creating a unique gateway to the city of Wilsonville.

Students show off 'Beauty and the Bridge' efforts at open house

As a preview to its March 13 open house, the Student Art Council updated the Wilsonville City Council on the Beauty and the Bridge Project.

The Beauty and the Bridge art project has over 1,000 student artists that have worked on a brightly-colored tiled expanse depicting the natural and local history of Wilsonville. The two 36-foot murals will be installed as part of the improvements to the I-5 underpass on Wilsonville Road.

Members of the Student Art Council from Wilsonville High School, Wood Middle School, Boeckman Creek Primary and Boones Ferry primary school addressed the City Council on March 5.

Emma Foster, a senior at Wilsonville High School reminded the council of the goals of the project, which include the involvement of Wilsonville students and the creation of “an attractive gateway to Wilsonville.”

“I’m pleased to report that 90 percent of the three thousand hand-painted tiles have been completed,” said Adrian Hart of Wood Middle School in his update.

Other students explained their part in the project, which Sadie Crystal of Boeckman Creek Primary says has used over 90 different colors of glaze and over 600 paintbrushes and will portray “over 100 different species of plants, insects, mammals, fish, amphibians and birds.”

“We are proud of all the progress that is being made and are celebrating our achievements by sponsoring a community-wide open house,” said Aliris Tang of Boeckman Creek Primary school.

The West Linn-Wilsonville School Board also received an update on the project ahead of Tuesday’s open house scheduled for 3:30-7:30 p.m. at Wilsonville High School.

Students create SMART art

Wilsonville residents may be used to the familiar green and white SMART buses driving around town. But one SMART bus is now almost guaranteed to get a second glance.

The brightly-colored bus is decorated with art by students at Boeckman Creek Primary School depicting traffic congestion and solutions.

The bus was unveiled on Jan 26 at Boeckman Creek and students came out in groups to see the artwork, admiring the work done by themselves and their peers.

SMARTArt is an annual school-based community art contest that focuses on using creativity to depict what transportation options can do for the City of Wilsonville.

Out of over 50 entries submitted, the winning three pieces of artwork were placed on the outside of the SMARTArt bus. Additional student entries are displayed on the inside of the bus and other SMART buses.

Older students were especially impressed by a small message stating, "This SMART ART brought to you by the artists at Boeckman Creek Primary School."

The project kicked off Boeckman Creek student's involvement in the Beauty and the Bridge public art project. Students learned about the I-5/Wilsonville road bicycle and pedestrian improvements and were taught about traffic and traffic congestion.

Working in teams of three to five, the third through fifth graders drew their idea of what traffic congestion looks like and what it would like if people use different transportation options.

The artwork was reviewed and voted on by city staff, the Beauty and the Bridge Art Team and the Student Art Council and the general public got a chance to vote at the Wilsonville Festival of Arts.

The SmartArt contest is an annual contest. In the past, both Boeckman Creek and Boones Ferry Primary students have participated.

As Wilsonville Road interchange area converts from six lanes to eight lanes for vehicular safety and capacity improvements, bicyclists and pedestrians also benefit with better east/west crossings under I-5. Wilsonville's young student artists will create tile art to be incorporated into the design to beautify the environment to make it inviting, comfortable, and aesthetically pleasing, with the goals of improving mobility and encouraging bicycling and walking.

The Wilsonville City Council recognized the critical need for better community walking and bicycling connections on Wilsonville Road. With dedicated funds to improve the infrastructure, the project additionally provides Wilsonville public school students a unique civic and educational opportunity to craft a truly local work of art. The end result will connect youth not only to the present community but ever after to Wilsonville.

Beauty and the Bridge's key goals are to:

- Make Wilsonville Road more inviting to walk and bike
- Create a safe way to travel for people who walk and bike under I-5 and to cross the street
- Involve Wilsonville public schools in the creation of a unique piece of public art
- Create an attractive and inviting gateway to Wilsonville

The project will involve over a thousand of Wilsonville's elementary, middle, and high school students in the creation of public tiled art. To ensure that the project reflects student voices, a Student Art Council (SAC) formed early in the project. The SAC serves as a liaison between the project, project stakeholders, and the media. It represents just one layer of a remarkable process that brings together city staff, council, schools, and the community in combining public art with a major infrastructure construction project.

About the Project

The Wilsonville City Council recognized the critical need for better community walking and bicycling connections on Wilsonville Road. With dedicated funds to improve the infrastructure. The project additionally provides students a unique civic and educational opportunity to craft a truly local work of art. The end result will connect youth not only to the present community but ever after to Wilsonville.

"This project has the potential to change the face of Wilsonville and create a welcoming gateway to the community. The richness of Wilsonville's natural resources will be celebrated in the design. I'm so proud of City leadership and their decision to invest in this focal point of the community by improving safety, capacity, and at the same time bringing beauty to this large scale infrastructure project. The best part of the project is that the young people of Wilsonville will be the "artists" creating this welcoming gateway for enjoyment today and long into the future. " noted Cynthia Thompson, Project Manager.

Beauty and the Bridge will span two school years and involve over a thousand of Wilsonville's elementary, middle and high school students.

Process

The Design Process consists of the following four steps:

Step 1 - Research

Step 2 - Sketch

Step 3 - Critique/Refine

Step 4 - Glazing/Transfer to Tiles

Students completed tasks according to their ages. Elementary school students were in charge of the landscape and small animals, middle school students painted a giant oak tree, and high school students worked on large "focal point" animals. They researched, sketched and painted tiles, then glazed and fired them in kilns. The process makes the artwork — grasses, flowers, foxes, elk, small fish — pop with a cheerful burst of color that even the grayest Oregon sky can't darken.

Railing Design - Artist Rendering

Railing Design - Wilsonville High School's Advanced Placement Art Students began designing the sidewalk railing - a key component of the I-5 / Wilsonville Road Interchange Project's bicycle and pedestrian enhancements. Jerry Werner, the artistic director, launched students' creativity with an overview of what public art can do for a community and the students role in its creation.

"My students are taking their commission from the city for this major public art piece very seriously. They have risen to the challenge, responded well to the early critique of their designs, and are producing a level of work that will astound the citizenry of this community. The people of Wilsonville will not believe that these railings were designed by high school students." - Christopher Sholota Hardt, WHS Art Director

The railing represents the first key project milestone as students prepare for spring tile production.

Place in History

Geography makes this a prime river crossing

With the Chehalem mountain range to the west and the volcanic basalt cliffs of Pete’s Mountain to the east, Wilsonville is sited along an ancient Native American travel route. Located on the easiest, low-bank crossing of the Willamette River for the 30-mile stretch known as the Newberg Pool, the Wilsonville area developed as a major north-south thoroughfare.

Around 1850, Jesse Boone, great-grandson of frontiersman Daniel Boone, improved the path, laid a split-log roadway through the middle of the North Willamette Valley, and began operating a ferry along this route. Steamboats traveled the Willamette River well into the 1900s, stopping at Boones Landing to pick up and deliver supplies. The Oregon Electric Railway crossed the Willamette River at this location in 1907, and decades later the federal government chose this crossing for Interstate 5, opening the I-5 Boone Bridge in 1954.

For more than 150 years Wilsonville was a farm community like much of the North Willamette Valley, growing and processing crops to transport to markets in Portland and beyond. With the arrival of the modern highway I-5, Wilsonville began to transform.

From fewer than 1,000 residents at the time of incorporation in 1968, Wilsonville grew steadily to more than 20,000 by 2010 when the Beauty and the Bridge project began. Unlike most cities in Oregon, which are located predominantly on one side of I-5, Wilsonville continued to expand equally on both sides of the freeway. The challenge of serving residents, schools, parks, industry, and retail across this divide resulted in a traffic bottleneck along Wilsonville Road at I-5.

In 2007, state and regional transportation officials and the City began to chart a dramatic $21.5 million makeover for the critical I-5/Wilsonville Road interchange. To provide safe passage and improve the experience for pedestrians, the City designed Beauty and the Bridge with a wide, elevated sidewalk above the roadway that features children’s artwork.

Breaking the Barrier

Uniting the community

ABOVE Artist rendering of the proposed raised, pedestrian-friendly walkway along Wilsonville Road at the I-5 underpass that inspired the Beauty and the Bridge art project.

Source: Callison Architecture

When the Oregon Department of Transportation (ODOT) began to design the $21.5 million plan to widen Wilsonville Road, the initial proposal boasted eight lanes, multiple left-turn lanes, a pair of elevated 10-foot-wide pedestrian paths, and safety islands at the four freeway on/off-ramps. It looked like a freeway under a freeway.

While the intent was to reunite both sides of the community across the freeway, the design was not inviting for pedestrians. Guided by the vision of City Manager Arlene Loble, local leaders began to brainstorm ways to create a more appealing thoroughfare and breathe life into the overall plan.

Thus was born the “Beauty and the Bridge” project: a series of art elements integrated into the pedestrian walkway. The project was propelled forward with the support of a unique partnership among ODOT, City of Wilsonville, and West Linn-Wilsonville School District.

This remarkable partnership extended beyond the major stakeholders to include more than 1,000 students who participated in the art creation over two school years. Students learned firsthand the kind of effort needed to organize a huge art project. They researched local history, learned about the biology of local plants and animals, studied the chemistry of ceramic glaze, and even gained knowledge of civil engineering.

At least two students from each Wilsonville school became part of a Student Art Council who presented updated plans and news to the City Council and School Board. The students visited other community groups and briefed the media, gaining both increased self-confidence and public-speaking experience.

Beauty & the Bridge

ABOVE Featured in the center of the mural, Oregon white oak (Quercus garryana) is a magnificent tree historically prevalent in the Willamette Valley. The oak tree, symbolic of wisdom and strength, is honored for endurance and noble presence. Located just west of here along Kinsman Road, “The Three Sisters” oaks are City of Wilsonville designated Heritage Trees.

Concerned about safety and the unwelcoming appearance of the underpass of the I-5 overpass bridge, local leaders sought to create a safer and more inviting experience, encourage bicycle/pedestrian mobility, and connect the east and west sides of the community.

The Wilsonville City Council worked with West Linn-Wilsonville School District teachers, principals, and board members to map out the daunting logistics of integrating students’ artwork into the construction project. An Oregon artist was selected to serve as creative director, who collaborated with the lead art teacher at Wilsonville High School to develop the design approach. With an ambitious production schedule, the planning team settled on a theme for “Beauty,” with a focus on the natural beauty of local flora and fauna.

The lead artist and school leaders folded the students’ research, design, painting, and glazing into the art curriculum.

Team of Thousands

There's a job for everyone!

ABOVE A community dedication event of "Beauty and the Bridge" held in October 2012 drew hundreds, allowing the public to fully grasp the detail and diligence of the students' magnificent effort.

In summer 2010, the high school art teacher led a group of older students on drawing portraits of larger animals. Professional artists guided the students through proper scaling and other techniques. Black-and-white sketches were converted to color before students painted ceramic glaze directly onto the one-square-foot tiles.

With invaluable help from two artists-in-residence, instructors at the middle and primary schools devoted class time throughout two school years of 2010 and 2011 to work on 7,200 tiles.

By early 2012, the tiles were painted and ready to be fired in a kiln. While most were fired successfully by a local stone and tile manufacturer, Wilsonville school kilns were soon also put to full use. Crucial work was done by a 22-member "Special Ops" high school team that pitched in before and after school whenever necessary to put finishing touches on backdrops and individual tiles.

In late May 2012, a contracted mother-son team arrived to install the tiles, and Wilsonville's gateway was forever transformed into a remarkable depiction of over 300 native plant and animal species and a testament to bridging barriers and generations. The community celebrated with a dedication event in October 2012 the completion of the Beauty and the Bridge I-5/Wilsonville Road interchange improvement and art project.
