SMART a Saving Grace for Wilsonville Centenarians

MART recently paid a visit to two valued passengers who rely on the City's on-demand transit services. The City's transit agency's house calls were to celebrate these new centenarians (both recently celebrated their 100th birthdays).

Ruth, a Moline, Ill., native, moved to Wilsonville in 2002 and began riding SMART the following year. After learning about SMART's services in the Boones Ferry Messenger, she began using SMART's Dial-a-Ride service for medical trips. She soon added shopping trips.

"The drivers are so nice," she said. "They get out in the rain with no complaints to help me with the lift getting into and out of the bus with my walker."

Ruth says every SMART employee she has encountered just wants to help. When the 2021 ice storm hit, dispatchers Gregg and Becky checked in on her to make sure she was OK.

"They brought a generator, electric blankets and a hot meal over; It was so wonderful! It was 40 degrees inside our home, with no end in sight!"

Thelma, who hails from Independence, Missouri, moved to Wilsonville in 1987. After giving up her car age 90, she began to rely on SMART Dial-a-Ride.

"They take me to the beauty salon once a week in Charbonneau, and I also use it for doctor appointments," Thelma said. "Since I have no immediate family in the area it is such a great help using the SMART bus for daily living."

She, too, sings the praises of SMART drivers.

"I would be lost without SMART, family is a long way away," Thelma Ruth credits a daily dose of crunchy peanut butter on toast for her longevity. She and Thelma are just two of the many older adults who are grateful to SMART for the independence that Wilsonville's awardwinning service provides.

"Using SMART has made my life a lot easier," she said. "Asking for help you begin to lose your dignity and SMART gave that back to me."

About Dial-a-Ride

SMART's Dial-a-Ride service provides door-to-door transportation for Wilsonville residents unable to use the fixed route service. Customers may schedule trips up to two weeks in advance.

Developing Frog Pond West Neighborhood Park: Park Concept Design Survey Closes March 7

A project is underway to design and build a new 2.9-acre neighborhood park in Wilsonville's Frog Pond West neighborhood.

Three draft park concepts have been completed, and are available to review at LetsTalkWilsonville.com. The City is now seeking public feedback to inform a preferred park concept. The survey closes on March 7.

To inform community members who wish to complete the survey, the project team has produced a short video presentation at "Let's Talk, Wilsonville!" that

Mayor's Message

Moving Forward With Strong Leaders, Diverse Skill Sets

We have a lot to be thankful for in Wilsonville.

If I were to ask 10 different people what they most appreciate about living and/or working here, I suspect I might get seven or eight different answers.

The things we love — and those things we would change — vary from person to person and change over time. Therein lies the challenge for our fivemember City Council, which is tasked with understanding and representing many diverse interests, and making (sometimes difficult) decisions in the collective best interest.

As the new City Council begins its work, I expect our decision making to benefit from the rich variety of skill sets, professional experience, viewpoints and life experience represented among our five seated members.

From higher education, to medicine, to agriculture, to organizational leadership to city planning, to marketing, to management, to business analytics, there is a lot of professional expertise on which we can draw.

Hearing my colleagues — Council President Kristin Akervall, Councilor Dr. Joann Linville, Councilor Caroline Berry and Councilor Katie Dunwell — discuss their work researching and deliberating on challenges and opportunities that matter to Wilsonville, gives me confidence that we will accomplish a lot.

Each Councilor has taken on multiple committee and board assignments to ensure that Wilsonville's interests are well-represented regionally. These assignments cover areas of importance to our community including transportation, public safety, parks, jobs, housing, clean air and plentiful drinking water, to name a few.

I am honored to serve with Councilors who go above and beyond the call of duty. And while our backgrounds are very different, we have in common the passion and the commitment to Wilsonville and to our region.

This month we are finalizing Council Goals for 2023-2025. This process establishes community priorities, identifies strategies to support these priorities, and establishes measurable goals that hold us accountable. These goals direct how we allocate the City's budget and helps the City Manager identify areas of focus for City staff.

For decades, Wilsonville's strong Council leadership has yielded many gifts, including a diverse business economy, neighborhoods and parks connected with bike and walking paths, a well-regarded library, and a strong record of fiscal health.

As we continue to build, I am inspired by the experience, ingenuity, and work ethic on our City Council. More than ever, I'm looking forward to goal-setting and working to further strengthen a community where everyone feels welcome, safe, and inspired ... a place we're proud to call home.

Open House Provides Details on Boeckman Road Construction

The City welcomed dozens of community members to an open house event at Meridian Creek Middle School to learn more about the Boeckman Road Corridor Improvement Program, a collection of projects that upgrade Boeckman Road to urban standards.

Project managers shared details on proposed lane widths, bike and pedestrian facilities, and the process of smoothing the Boeckman Dip. The program provided an opportunity for community members to talk face-to-face with City engineers and representatives from the contractor, Tapani|Sundt.

With construction expected to begin this summer, many questions were related to the pending construction activities. Some of the most asked questions appear below, with answers from the project team.

Where are construction vehicles parking?

The preliminary plans include a staging area on a City-owned property on the corner of SW Canyon Creek and Boeckman Roads.

During what hours is construction taking place?

Typically, work will occur weekdays between 7 am and 6 pm; these hours may be adjusted seasonally. Occasional night and Saturday work could take place during peak construction season to shorten the closure of SW Boeckman Road. Notifications are to be provided before night or Saturday work takes place; work is not allowed on City-observed holidays.

Will streetlights be included in the alignment?

Yes. Planning is underway for streetlights along SW Boeckman Rd. The exact placement of streetlighting is under design.

facilities, and the process of smoothing the Boeckman Dip. The program provided Dip. The program provided At a January open house, City engineers developing the Boeckman Road Corridor Improvement Program detailed the project, introduced the contractor and answered questions about the pending construction on Boeckman Rd.

What is being done to minimize noise and dust during construction?

Crews are adhering to City of Wilsonville dust and noise ordinances. During the dry weather conditions, dust is generally controlled by covering exposed soils and spraying with water.

Will lights be placed under the bridge? Yes, there will be lights under the bridge.

Does the project include a trail connecting Frog Pond to Canyon Creek Meadows?

Yes. A link to the regional trail system is included in the plan. Final trails designs are not complete.

When an Emergency Requires Evacuation, Be Prepared to Move Quickly mergencies like fires, floods, and earthquakes can Lstrike at any time. In the event you need to leave your home with little notice, it's good to be prepared so you can quickly and safely get out of harm's way. Here is a short to-do list to be Wilsonville Ready.

Emergency Alerts

Signing up for emergency alerts at publicalerts.org is a quick, simple way to get urgent news via phone, text, or email. Alerts from county officials will relay notices to evacuate, shelter locations, and other important information directly to you.

Develop a Home Escape Plan

When a house fire breaks out, every minute counts. To prepare your family to get out safely, our preparedness partner, Tualatin Valley Fire & Rescue, recommends that you:

• Install smoke alarms in every sleeping room, outside each separate sleeping area and on every level of the home.

• Make a home escape plan. Draw a map of each level of your home and be sure to include all doors and windows.

- Go to each room and point to the two ways out. Practice the plan with everyone in the household.
- Remember to practice "Get low and Go", crawling under the smoke.
- Have an outside meeting place. (something permanent like a tree, mailbox, light pole) a safe distance in front of your home where the firefighters can easily find you.
- Practice, practice, practice!

Pack Your 'Go' Bag

Keep a 'go' bag packed with essential supplies so you are ready to leave your home quickly. Include nonperishable, lightweight food, water, first aid supplies, medications, electronics, batteries, cell phones, chargers, important documents, and cash.

In the event of a regional emergency, knowing the appropriate evacuation routes becomes critical. Metro and our partners at the Regional Disaster Preparedness Organization (RDPO) have developed a map of Regional Emergency Transportation Routes, which identifies major regional arterials to be used for mass evacuation. The map includes information on hospitals, transit hubs, airports, and other essential facilities as well. View the WILSONVILLE READY

map at ci.wilsonville. or.us/ready/page/

Have a Safe Destination in Mind

transportation-routes-evacuation-planning

If you evacuate, you will need a place to stay. Consider your choices (staying with a friend or relative, camping, shelters, hotels, etc.) in different directions, so you have options. Let people know where you leave, and return only when authorized.

For more preparation resources, including videos, home escape planning worksheets, checklists, maps, and tools, visit WilsonvilleReady.com.

Free Workshop: Growing a Garden That Builds Wildlife Habitat

The City is hosting a free class to help homeown-Lers design wildlife-friendly habitats in their own back yard.

This introductory class, "Introduction to Wildlife Garden Making: How to Create Conditions in Your Garden That Support Wildlife," takes place at the Wilsonville Public Library's Oak

Wildlife Garden Workshop Sat, March 11, 11 am-12:30 pm Wilsonville Library Oak Room 8200 SW Wilsonville Rd.

Room on Saturday, March 11, from 11 am to 12:30 pm. The class is presented by Habitat Design PDX, informed by information from Bee City USA and the Backyard Habitat Certification Program.

Participants are encouraged to bring a sketch and photos of their garden, so that instructors can provide actionable gardening advice at the conclusion of the class.

Pre-registration is required. E-mail contact@habitatdesignpdx.com to RSVP or learn more.

Doing the Work to Understand and Use More Inclusive Language (or "Hey, Do You Even Realize What You Just Said?!")

By Diane Imel

ecently, I was called out by one Nof my dearest friends after an apparent misspeak I had made in casual conversation. A word I chose, I was told, was no longer an acceptable descriptor.

To say I was stunned is an enormous understatement! My words were chosen without malice, and my slight completely unintentional. Nevertheless, it revealed my ignorance regarding the use of now-taboo descriptors that were once commonplace.

How am I to know what the appropriate language should be? Where can I go to educate myself about the acceptable words and phrases of today? How often have I been misusing words that may have made others take offense?

My embarrassment was like a key to a locked door, a wake-up call that underlined the importance of updating my language to correct the use of any derogatory phrases that may offend.

I know I am not the only one facing this challenge, which can be particularly vexing to people of my generation. The language of diversity, equity and inclusion is novel to many of us, and it always seems to be changing.

By confronting this challenge directly, and working to update my own vocabulary, I've discovered several useful online resources that may offer useful guidance for others:

- diversitystyleguide.com; designed to help media professionals cover a multicultural world with accuracy, authority and sensitivity
- diversitycenterneo.org/about-us/pronouns/; this "How-To" guide discusses personal pronouns and how to correctly use them.
- writer.com/guides/inclusive-language/; this guide for writers lists phrases/words to avoid and suggests more suitable replacements.
- cdc.gov/healthcommunication/Preferred_

Terms.html; suggests words to describe several historically-marginalized groups

 apa.org/about/apa/equity-diversity-inclusion/ language-guidelines; includes many general recommendations for inclusive language

I believe it is imperative that we end discrimination of all kinds to make our community a more inclusive place. My own gaffe has allowed me great introspection regarding speech and the inherent strength of the words we choose.

While it is human nature to speak in the moment without thoroughly analyzing what we're saying, we would all benefit by spending time weighing the words we use before utterance.

POLICE CHIEF'S CORNER

Police Department Welcomes Mental Health Specialist

Tam very excited to welcome Brenda Evans to the ⚠ Wilsonville Police Department as the City's first dedicated mental health specialist. Commonly referred to within law enforcement as the Behavioral Health Unit or "BHU," mental health specialists serve many roles, including first response to mental health emergencies; follow-up care, support, and connection to resources; and leading training on topics related to mental health.

Police Chief Rob Wurpes

By providing critical, compassionate care to community members who are experiencing a mental health crisis, Brenda is freeing up other officers to advance more traditional police work, including patrols and investigations.

Brenda comes to Wilsonville with a Master's degree in social work and more than 10 years of trauma-informed experience as a mental health and crisis response professional. I am looking forward to incorporating her skill set, which benefits our department and improves our ability to effectively serve the Wilsonville community.

"I am passionate about helping individuals in crisis and assisting their loved ones in navigating the unknowns that come with crisis," Evans said upon joining. "I am honored to lend my expertise and support to the community of Wilsonville, and am impressed by the dedicated and compassionate professionals here at Wilsonville Police Department and Clackamas County."

Brenda was assigned to Wilsonville in January by Clackamas County Behavioral Health, with whom the City of Wilsonville contracted for the position. Brenda's hire represents a terrific collaboration among the City of Wilsonville, Brenda Evans has joined the Police Department as a dedicated Mental Health Specialist.

Wilsonville Police Department, Clackamas County Sheriff's Office and Clackamas County Behavioral Health to meet the community's needs.

Typically, Brenda works at the Wilsonville station from 11 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. every Wednesday through Saturday. For situations that are non-emergency, she can be reached at 503-655-8211.

If you would like to reach a Mental Health Specialist outside of those hours, please contact the 24/7 Clackamas County Crisis and Support Line at 503-655-8585. And, of course, in-progress emergencies are still best handled by calling 911.

Wilsonville Rotary Names Four First Citizen Award Finalists

The Rotary Club of Wilsonville has selected four ▲ finalists for the 2022 Wilsonville First Citizen

The First Citizen award honors someone each year for exceptional volunteer service to the community.

A committee of Rotarians and other community leaders reviewed 12 nominations, and selected four finalists: Casey Carpenter, a Tualatin Valley Fire & Rescue firefighter; Greg Artman, a local photographer; Molly Kalekilo, owner of Innovative Dance; and Tammy Bradley, a Wilsonville High School coach and staff member..

Each finalist is being recognized and the 2022 Wilsonville First Citizen is to be announced at the club's annual Heart of Gold Dinner and Auction, Thursday, April 6, at Oregon Golf Club in West Linn. This year's theme is "Wings of Service," a nod to the new Top Gun movie released last year.

"The amount of incredible leaders and volunteers that actively participate and impact members of our community is mind-blowing," said Kyle Bunch, club president and chair of the First Citizen Award.

To purchase tickets to the Heart of Gold Dinner and Auction or learn more about the finalists, visit wilsonvillerotary.com.

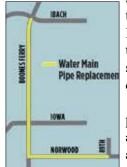

Tualatin Water Main Replacement to Impact Boones Ferry Rd. Traffic

¬he City of Tualatin is moving ▲ forward with a water main pipe replacement project along Boones Ferry Rd. This work is scheduled to begin early this summer (if supply chain issues do not alter the construction schedule). Once the project begins, it will take about five months to complete.

The project area extends from water storage tanks south of Norwood Rd north to Ibach St., just past Tualatin High School. During construction, travelers should expect some traffic delays, noise, and dust along Boones Ferry Rd.

The City of Tualatin website provides detailed information about the project and provides an opportunity to sign up for updates on construction timing and impacts. Visit bit.ly/3wxViiF.

Oregon Tech Re-Opens Student Veteran Resource Center

In January, the Oregon Tech Portland-Metro cam-⊥ pus in Wilsonville celebrated the re-opening of its Veteran Resource Center (VRC).

The center gives military-affiliated students (student veterans, service members, and military family members) a larger, more centralized space to study, relax and connect in a supportive atmosphere.

The VRC provides a variety of services specific to the needs of military-affiliated students, supports the transition from military to student/civilian life, and provides experience-centered connections on and off campus.

Established in 1947 to help WWII veterans successfully transition back to civilian life through technical education, Oregon Tech has a proud history of military-student support, and is providing a top-notch education for active-duty service members, veterans, and dependents.

Uniquely positioned to support the success of veterans and military-connected students, OIT was acknowledged by U.S. Veterans Magazine as a Top Veteran-Friendly School in 2022.

Notable Actions: City Boards and Commissions

City Council	Action	What it Means
Feb. 6	The Council approved a $200,000 agreement with Century West Engineering to provide consulting services to advance the 2023 Street Maintenance Project.	This annual program to fund street resurfacing keeps the City's road infrastructure safe and reliable. This year, road improvements are slated on portions of Wilsonville Rd., Boeckman Rd. and Parkway Ave.
Feb. 6	The Council approved a $1.47 million agreement with Consor North America, Inc. to provide engineering consulting on an upcoming capital project.	The contract supports a project to add 3 million gallons (3MG) of storage capacity to Wilsonville's water system.
Feb. 6	The Council approved a $270,000 contract with Asco Solutions to provide security and access controls for the City's new Public Works Complex.	Now under construction, the new facility consolidates Public Works functions on a secure, centrally-located Boberg Rd. property.
Feb. 6	The Council approved an amendment to the contract with Taylor Morrison Northwest LLC to allow permitting to continue within Villebois' Clermont subdivision.	This action allows construction to continue before park improvements are completed, as more moderate weather is required to resurface tennis courts as stipulated in the agreement.
Feb. 6	The Council approved the appointment of two community members recommended by Mayor Julie Fitzgerald to serve on City Boards & Commissions.	Alice Galloway Neeley has been appointed to a two-year term on the Development Review Board. Jenelle Reid has been appointed to a three-year term on the Kitakata Sister City Advisory Board.
Jan. 19	On second reading, the Council adopted two ordinances that annex and rezone 9.2 acres within the Coffee Creek Industrial Area.	These actions enable development of a warehouse/manufacturing building and associated site improvements that are consistent with the Coffee Creek Master Plan
Jan. 19	The Council took two actions, on second reading, to approve a new Flag Policy, which codifies a framework that defines how/when commemorative flags may be placed on City flag poles and in City facilities, among other regulations.	The new code prohibits the display of banners on City streetlights and other poles except for City-sponsored events, and articulates how flags may be displayed.
Jan. 19	The Council approved a $135,000 contract with Northwest Playgrounds for the purchase and installation of a new inclusive climber and other amenities at the Murase Plaza playground in upper Memorial Park.	The project includes fully-accessible synthetic turf surfacing, and represents the first step toward making the playground completely inclusive.

LECTURE SERIES

DISPLACING BLACK PORTLAND: A HISTORY OF HOUSING DISCRIMINATION

People of African descent have called Portland home since the earliest days of non-Native settlement. However policies of systemic racism have led to waves of displacement and demolition within the city's historically Black neighborhoods. Ripple effects of generations of housing discrimination continue to shape Portland's demographics, and Black Portlanders' opportunities within a rapidly gentrifying city.

DEI Lecture Series Gets Underway on March 2

The City's Diversity, Equity and Inclusion (DEI) Committee is presenting a series of educational lectures to help shed light on the history and lived experience of people in historically marginalized segments of our population.

DEI Lecture Series Thu., March 2, 6:30 pmHilton Garden Inn 30800 SW Parkway Ave.

In developing this series, the DEI Committee has sought a wide array of topics to help people gain a broader understanding of their neighbors and build a more cohesive community.

The series debuts on March 2 at the Hilton Garden Inn, with food and drinks available for purchase. These events are taking place at several locations within Wilsonville, and are free to attend.

The series is funded by a Community Opportunity Grant from the Parks & Recreation Department.

Clackamas County Seeking "Master Recyclers" For Seven-Week Certification

Clackamas County is accepting applicants for its annual "Master Recycler" Training Program, which takes place on Wednesday evenings in April and May.

The free seven-week training provides best practices from area recycling experts. Participants learn the latest information on repair, reuse, compost, toxics, equity, Climate- and of course recycling. Afterward, participants complete volunteer 30 hours to earn certification and become valued resources for their neighborhoods and communities.

This Metro program is offered annually to inspire people to take sustainable action. Participants sour recycling centers, compost facilities,
