Boeckman Road Closure, Road Improvements to Begin in Late January

With pre-construction activity on schedule and the City Council's adoption of a guaranteed price amendment with contractor Tapani | Sundt completed on Dec. 4, the City is set to begin a critical road improvement project that will substantially impact local traffic for the next year.

Beginning in late January, and continuing until the spring of 2025, Boeckman Road is being closed to all traffic between Canyon Creek Road and Sherman Drive to facilitate construction of a new bridge over Boeckman Creek and eliminate the "Boeckman Dip" to make cross-town travel safer for all modes of transportation.

"I'm glad to get construction of the Boeckman Bridge underway. This project is a strategic investment in necessary infrastructure to improve travel safety and make Wilsonville more connected," Mayor Julie Fitzgerald said. "This project represents a commitment to safe streets, walkways, pedestrian areas, and environmentally conscious community development."

Traffic detours will be in place to aide motorists, pedestrians and cyclists. Travelers should allow extra time, exercise caution, and follow detour routes.

Engineers determined that a complete road closure is the most efficient way to construct the new bridge,

Three-Time Wilsonville HS Soccer Champs Kickin' It at City Hall

On the heels of their third consecutive Oregon State Athletic Association (OSAA) 5A State Championship, players and coaches from the Wilsonville High School girls soccer team stopped by City Hall for formal recognition of their accomplishments. Mayor Julie Fitzgerald proclaimed Dec. 4-8 as "Wilsonville Wildcat Week" and noted the team's 3.65 cumulative grade point average.

a major component of the Boeckman Road Corridor Improvement Program. The program combines several essential long-planned City projects, including:

- Three-span bridge over Boeckman Creek
- Removal of the Boeckman "dip"
- Roundabout at SW Canyon and Boeckman Road
- Bike and pedestrian lanes to make the road safer
- and easier to ride, walk, and run
- Expanded sewer capacity to serve Frog Pond area
- Boeckman Creek Trail connection to facilitate expansion of regional trail system

The City broke ground in August, and has completed utility relocations, removal of a City-owned house, improvements at Meridian Creek, and the installation of a temporary traffic signal at the intersection of Stafford and 65th to improve the flow of detour traffic.

Once the complete road closure begins, traffic is being detoured via Stafford Road to and Canyon Creek Drive to the City's other two cross-town streets, Wilsonville Road and Elligsen Road. The estimated cost of the suite of projects, $36.8 million, reflects new costs due to unanticipated work mandated by soil conditions as well as severe inflation that is impacting national, regional, and local construction projects.

"The city's Engineering and Finance teams are value engineering to deliver the project as efficiently and costeffectively as possible for the community's benefit," said Andrew Barrett, the City's capital projects manager.

Mayor's Message

You Shared Your Vision for Town Center; In May, We'll Take the Next Step Toward Implementation

I enjoy conversations about opportunities to enhance the heart of Wilsonville. Whenever someone mentions the desire to see new restaurants, retailers, and other amenities here, it provides a chance to discuss the City's grand vision already in place to revitalize downtown.

Back before the "time warp" of the pandemic years, you may financing) has been a successful catalyst for essential improvements that have shaped our high quality of life in Wilsonville. These include the Water Treatment Plant, Wilsonville High School, our fantastic Memorial Park and upgrades to several major roads, including Wilsonville Road and the I-5 Wilsonville Road interchange. In fact, Villebois would not exist if the city had not unlocked that part of the city through urban renewal-funded investments in infrastructure.

recall the City's unprecedented public outreach campaign to inform a new vision for the area in and around the Town Center Loop. Inspired by ideas and aspirations gathered during direct engagement with thousands of residents and other community stakeholders, City staff developed a plan that prioritized your wants and needs.

Now it's time to kick-start this dynamic plan — the 2019 Wilsonville Town Center Plan — the road map for Wilsonville's vibrant future downtown district. The plan envisions a walk- and bike-friendly main street surrounded by housing, cafés, shopping, parks, and plentiful outdoor gathering places.

Bringing this vision to life requires funding public infrastructure improvements necessary to spur private capital investment and development. To get the ball moving, the City Council will be asking for guidance from residents on whether a new Urban Renewal area should be established as a mechanism to secure new funding. Registered voters may cast their vote in the upcoming May election.

Urban Renewal (also known as tax increment

Wilsonville voters have supported the use of urban renewal in four prior advisory votes, most recently in 2015 to establish the Coffee Creek Industrial Area, where an urban renewal-funded project to upgrade Garden Acres Road has spurred construction of several new industrial sites that are now bringing new jobs and new revenue to Wilsonville.

When an urban renewal area is established in Wilsonville, the City and local agencies with taxing authority (Tualatin Valley Fire & Rescue, Clackamas County, and others) are asked to forego annual increases on the property tax revenue streams that they would normally receive from within the area boundary while urban renewal is in effect.

Tax revenue growth that occurs within the urban renewal area after the area has been designated, are those funds that would be used to pay for the infrastructure and projects needed to achieve the community goals in the Town Center Plan. As we have seen in Wilsonville with past urban renewal successes, public investment attracts private capital, and the resulting new private development increases property tax revenues and quality of life into the future, long after the urban Improved walkability and community gathering places are hallmarks of the Town Center Plan adopted in 2019 after an unprecedented public outreach campaign.

Through the use of Urban Renewal, we can provide future generations with modern amenities without placing additional burden on taxpayers. Our community-led vision builds upon our proud history of thoughtful planning, advancing a much-needed evolution of our Town Center that prioritizes harmonious design, safe connectivity for cyclists and pedestrians, and responsible environmental stewardship.

On Feb. 1, New Waste Collection Rates In Effect, New Recycling Services Introduced

In February, a rate increase goes into effect for garbage and recycling services provided by Republic Services, marking the first rate increase in five years for Wilsonville residents and businesses.

A growing customer base has helped keep collection rates stable for several years; rates were even decreased in 2022. Because the growth of new solid-waste customer accounts generated new revenue greater than the increase in operational expenses, Wilsonville was perhaps the only city in Oregon to avoid a solid waste rate increase over a five-year period.

Multiple inflationary factors and slower customer growth is resulting in rate increases effective Feb., 1, 2024. Key inflationary expenses include an increase in costs of disposal, recycling, labor and health insurance.

Rates increases are in the range of 5-12%, depending upon the service:

- Residential collection: Average increase = 9.2%
- Commercial containers: Average increase = 7.5%
- Industrial drop box/roll-off compactor: Average increase = 5.0%.

Community Displays Generosity During Annual Toy Drive Collection

A s usual, the Wilsonville community displayed its heart with enthusiastic support of the City's annual Holiday Toy Drive (pictured) and Stockings for Seniors programs.

More than 600 new, unwrapped toys were collected at the Wilsonville Community Center and delivered by City staff to Clackamas County non-profit Toy & Joy Compassion in Action for distribution to local families.

Additionally, community members donated 140 stockings — stuffed with treats, trinkets, and treasures — that were delivered to seniors who attend lunch at the Community Center or participate in the City's Home Delivered Meal program.

Thank you, Wilsonville!

For example, 35-gallon residential garbage cart weekly service (that also includes 35-gallon mixed recycling cart, 35-gallon organics/yard-debris cart and glass/batteries recycling bin) is increasing by $2.60 to $30.55 per month. Customers are billed every two months.

The annual Leaf Collection Day and twice-yearly Bulky Waste Day, co-sponsored by the City and Republic Services, are scheduled to continue.

New Recycling Programs

Metro-area counties and cities are implementing new recycling services, including battery collection in curbside glass bins, as part of standard service. Also an optional Recycle+ recycling program available starting Feb. 1 for materials not included in standard recycling service, such as hard-to-recycle items like plastic clamshells, compact fluorescent light bulbs and old linens.

Additionally, the Metro-mandated business foodwaste or commercial food-scraps composting program continues to be rolled out to a wider range of businesses that generate compostable food-scraps "in the back of the house," meaning in the kitchen foodpreparation area of the business. Clackamas County Sustainability Division is working with local businesses covered by the 2020 Metro ordinance for composting food scraps.

Concurrently, and unrelated to rate modifications, the Wilsonville City Council recently adopted a revised solid-waste franchise ordinance and corresponding administrative rules, effective Jan. 1, that codify various changes in the rate-review process and residential and commercial garbage and recycling services.

Caring Through Crisis: Emergency Readiness for Caregivers

Many people provide care for family members or others with special healthcare or mobility concerns that make them especially vulnerable during an emergency or natural disaster.

Caregivers should handle emergency planning not just for themselves, but for those they care for, so communities can stay safer and more resilient in the face of an emergency. This month, Wilsonville Ready provides some tips for caregivers to consider:

A Team Approach Is Optimal

Especially during an emergency, when families can get separated, it's in everyone's best interest to have a support team to help care for a loved one in need of assistance. This team can include family members, neighbors, friends, neighborhood groups, faith-based groups, health care providers, service providers, and social service organizations.

Plan Ahead to Stay Safe

When preparing for an emergency as a caregiver, write down your loved one's considerations, including mobility limitations, routines/schedules, current health conditions, healthcare provider contacts and insurance information. Share this information with your support team as appropriate to ensure your loved one can receive the necessary support in an emergency.

Develop a family plan that considers any special assistance that might be needed in different emergency situations. To consider in this planning:

- How you will communicate with each other before, during, and after an emergency?
- How do a loved one's (or your own) medical, physical, or cognitive needs factor into any response to an emergency?
- How can medical equipment be operated if electricity goes out?
- How will they get the medicine or medical treatment they need in an emergency?
- What transportation options are available? How, and to where would your loved one evacuate?

Discuss the plan with your support team to ensure everyone understands their roles and responsibilities. Include the person you're caring for in the planning when possible, so they know and can follow the plan.

Tailor Supplies for Each Person's Needs

Most likely, emergency supplies needed by those in your care are different than your own needs. When gathering supplies for a loved one, consider special dietary needs, medications, and assistive devices like canes, wheelchairs, hearing aids, dentures, CPAP machines, plus any chargers or extra batteries.

Restoration of 95th Avenue Ongoing Through January

The Willamette Water Supply Program's (WWSP) installation of a new segment of water pipeline under 95th Avenue, between Hillman Court and Ridder Road, is complete.

In collaboration with the City, street restoration is underway to install new curbs, sidewalks, driveways, and to apply temporary concrete paving by the end of the month unless severe winter weather (heavy rain, snow, ice, and low temperatures) causes delays. Once temporary pavement is in place, the road will re-open to two-way traffic.

This spring, when weather conditions improve, permanent concrete paving will be installed.

Project Moves South Near Transit Center

Soon, work is set to begin further south on 95th Avenue, between Hillman Court and Boeckman Road, to relocate a City water main and install additional transmission pipeline. During this upcoming work, traffic control measures will be in place and the northbound lane of 95th Avenue will be closed between Boeckman Road and Hillman Court.

Crews are also planning the installation of a segment of pipeline beneath Boeckman Road and the TriMet Westside Express Service (WES) rail line in early 2024. Crews will tunnel beneath the roadway and rail line to reduce impacts to vehicle traffic.

When the trenchless crossing is complete, the new segment will be connected to an already-installed pipeline segment at Boeckman Road and 95th Avenue.

By 2026, a 30-mile WWSP water transmission pipeline will transport drinking water from the Willamette River to serve residents in Hillsboro, Beaverton, and Tualatin Valley Water District service areas. Ratepayers in those communities are funding the project, which is providing Wilsonville with road improvements and other amenities.

Signing Up for Emergency Alerts Helps Us Keep the Community Safer When a Crisis Hits

 $E^{\rm very\ day\ communities\ face\ local\ emergencies\ -}_{\rm chemical\ spills,\ fires,\ gas\ leaks,\ police\ activity,\ and other\ events\ -$ that require the quick dissemination of information to keep people out of harm's way.

Emergency alerts, commonly known as "reverse 911," can play a crucial role in spreading critical information during unforeseen events. While employed infrequently, the technology can provide a rapid and efficient means for emergency responders to communicate with the public.

Police Chief Rob Wurpes

In turn, alerts can also end up providing our officers with useful information.

For example, a recent incident in our city involved an individual who fled a traffic stop, subsequently crashed and escaped on foot; we had reason to believe this person might be armed. As a precautionary measure, we activated our emergency alert system, urging nearby residents to remain indoors and to secure their homes while law enforcement conducted a thorough search of the area.

Some observant residents, prompted by the alert, detected suspicious activity on their doorbell cameras and promptly contacted 911, facilitating a swift exchange of pertinent video footage with the police.

It is worth taking a minute to register your phone numbers at clackamas.us/dm/publicalerts or publicalerts.org to ensure you receive pertinent alerts, which typically arrive in the form of pre-recorded calls directed to home phones or mobile devices within the area of an ongoing incident. The system sources its information from telephone company listings and public records to compile a comprehensive list of contact numbers; residents may opt-in to receive messages on their mobile devices. When you receive an alert, follow the safety instructions provided, which may include directives to stay indoors and secure doors. Additionally, when you see something you believe is relevant or have camera footage, please share by calling 911.

Registering to receive emergency alerts is an easy step you can take to make your household more prepared. Families are encouraged to discuss emergency alert procedures, ensuring that all household members can receive alerts, and are prepared to respond calmly.

Emergency alerts serve as invaluable tools for enhancing public safety, benefiting law enforcement agencies and residents alike. By prompting swift and coordinated action, we can help ensure the community's well-being during critical situations. Happy New Year!
